not surprisingly, developing countries could not lend their consensus to a framework of negotiations so detrimental to their interests.

It is known to protect brain cells from decay as well as balancing blood sugar levels and high blood pressure.