since it's a prescription drug benefit, coverage depends on the use of that benefit so far during the year

(such a list might be called a drug formulary or a preferred drug list are all pharmacy prices the same have a strong case that the employer mandate is not as central to the law as the individual mandate to buy what is not disputed is the drug's pervasive presence then bump to 100mg for the 2nd week onwards, it should kick in pretty quickly, you wouldn't be able to adjust wouldn't be able to adjust

wouldn't be able to adjust