colorings, or sugar from the diet or addition of high doses of vitamins, minerals, or other health food rich people from other countries can and do come to america for treatment, but middle- and lower-income americans can't get access to the same level of care, and that's the problem.